

Vedanta makes $5 b investment in India

Our Bureau

New Delhi

Anil Agarwal-promoted, Vedanta Ltd, on Thursday said, its capex in India stood at $5 billion, from its total planned outlay of $8.5 billion. These investments are focused on capacity expansions, backward integration, and raw material security projects.

The company said, it operates some of the most strategic natural resource assets here, which include the world's largest single-location aluminium smelter, the world's largest underground zinc mining site, the world's largest single location zinc-lead smelter, and India's largest onshore oil field.

Over the last few financial years, the company invested nearly $2.5 billion in India to boost production, strengthen backward integration, integrate new technologies and expand its value-added product portfolio.

In the first quarter of FY26, Vedanta subsidiary Hindustan Zinc announced a $1.4 billion investment as part of doubling capacity.